February 14, 2025

The Honorable Mike Johnson Speaker U.S. House of Representatives H-232, The Capitol Washington, D.C. 20515

The Honorable John Thune Majority Leader United States Senate 511 Dirksen Senate Office Building Washington, DC 20510 The Honorable Hakeem Jeffries Democratic Leader U.S. House of Representatives H-204, The Capitol Washington, DC 20515

The Honorable Charles E. Schumer Democratic Leader United States Senate 322 Hart Senate Office Building Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Speaker Johnson, Leader Jeffries, Leader Thune, and Leader Schumer,

The American Bankers Association and the undersigned 52 state bankers associations collectively represent banks of all asset sizes that serve customers from across the United States. We write to express strong support for S.J. Res. 18/H.J. Res. 59, the resolution of disapproval introduced by Chairman Tim Scott and Chairman French Hill, which would invalidate the final rule issued by the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) on December 12, 2024, regarding overdraft protection services. We urge Congress to pass this resolution without delay.

Overdraft protection services provide a needed form of short-term liquidity for millions of consumers who – following receipt of a consumer-tested disclosure – "opt-in" to use the product to cover emergency or unexpected expenses that overdraw their accounts. In the final days of his tenure, CFPB Director Rohit Chopra issued a final rule that goes well beyond the agency's statutory authority. It declares overdraft services offered by banks and credit unions with more than $10 billion in assets to be "credit" regulated by the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) and Regulation Z unless the overdraft fee is below a $5 price cap or below the institution's "breakeven" costs to operate its overdraft program.

Director Chopra's final rule would apply TILA and Reg. Z to overdraft despite the fact that TILA's definition of "credit" unquestionably precludes this interpretation. Indeed, Director Chopra's final rule reverses 55 years of consistent interpretation of TILA and Reg. Z by the agencies charged with enforcing it and the courts. In addition, TILA is a disclosure statute; Congress established a consumer protection regime grounded on clear disclosure and consumer choice—not regulation of the terms of consumer credit products. Yet Director Chopra's final rule goes far beyond mandating disclosure and would impose substantive restrictions on bank overdraft services, to the detriment of the millions of consumers that elect to use it to cover unexpected expenses.

If not invalidated, Director Chopra's rule would lead banks to restrict, if not eliminate, access to overdraft, harming those consumers who have few, if any, other options for meeting short-term liquidity needs. The rule would do so even though analyses show that the average transaction that overdraws the customer's account is in the hundreds of dollars. Not surprisingly, survey after survey show that consumers appreciate and value their institution's overdraft program and are glad that their institution covered their overdraft payment, rather than returned or declined the payment.

The rule purports to apply only to banks and credit unions with more than $10 billion in assets, but if the rule takes effect, all depository institutions – and their customers – will be impacted. Large banks will be forced to lower their overdraft fee to the benchmark fee of $5 or to discontinue or restrict access to overdraft services. If a large bank reduces its overdraft fee to $5, the neighboring community bank will feel compelled to do the same or risk losing its customers to the large bank. Community banks have limited product lines and fewer sources of revenue to offset reduced overdraft fee income; therefore, the overdraft rule may lead to greater consolidation in the banking industry.

We urge Congress to pass the resolution of disapproval without delay.

Sincerely,

American Bankers Association Alabama Bankers Association Alaska Bankers Association Arizona Bankers Association Arkansas Bankers Association California Bankers Association Colorado Bankers Association Connecticut Bankers Association DC Bankers Association Delaware Bankers Association Florida Bankers Association Georgia Bankers Association Hawaii Bankers Association Idaho Bankers Association Illinois Bankers Association Indiana Bankers Association Iowa Bankers Association Kansas Bankers Association Kentucky Bankers Association Louisiana Bankers Association Maine Bankers Association Maryland Bankers Association Massachusetts Bankers Association Michigan Bankers Association Minnesota Bankers Association Mississippi Bankers Association Missouri Bankers Association Montana Bankers Association Nebraska Bankers Association Nevada Bankers Association New Hampshire Bankers Association New Jersey Bankers Association New Mexico Bankers Association New York Bankers Association North Carolina Bankers Association North Dakota Bankers Association Ohio Bankers League Oklahoma Bankers Association Oregon Bankers Association Pennsylvania Bankers Association Puerto Rico Bankers Association Rhode Island Bankers Association South Carolina Bankers Association South Dakota Bankers Association Tennessee Bankers Association Texas Bankers Association Utah Bankers Association Vermont Bankers Association Virginia Bankers Association Washington Bankers Association West Virginia Bankers Association Wisconsin Bankers Association Wyoming Bankers Association